Additional Information

1. This Guide will be a handy preparation tool for Story Telling participants for Varsity.

3. This guide will only contain the sub-theme and its explanation, and the participants will start there to make their own story.
4. Participants are not required to submit the three copies, but if they're using slides and sound effects to accompany their story, they will have to submit the flash-drive containing them during the Technical Meeting.
5. Regarding properties and costumes, participants can bring their properties and wear costumes as an addition for their performance, without endangering themselves and other people. That is to say, participants are prohibited to litter, bring sharp weapons, etc.

After all, good luck and enjoy!

Varsity Subtheme: Voice Out Your Mind for Better Mankind

Realize it or not, at this moment, we all have issues. Either with each other, our environment—or even the world (the biggest issue that affects us). We know, that there are two choices: we face that issue alone, having nowhere to go or nowhere to say; or, we're going to take a shot and let our voices be heard, regardless of what other people has been thinking, and what are they responses to it. Moreover, with all these issues, everyone wants this world to be better—that is to say, we also want a better mankind, don't we?

Therefore, we invite you all to voice out your mind—with hopes that we're going to have a better mankind. Anything, ranging from an innovation to help us, or even to how we shall fix ourselves as a person (but don't forget, we're sci-fi)—all of them is possible. From then on, we're going to realize that our voices are needed to improve, not only our own self, but for the improvement of our own mankind. Telling our stories is one of the ways we can start to voice out our mind, and by spreading our story, we can hear more voices calling, and those voices are finally united for the betterment of our own good.
